

Wills Review
By Sarah Noton, Solicitor & Director
Swayne Johnson Solicitors

Following changes to the law generally regarding Inheritance Tax, and more particularly the Chancellor's budget, it is very important that Wills are reviewed on a periodic basis.

While some of the proposals put out in the Chancellor's budget have now been changed, some confusion still remains and it is essential that professional advice is sought.

Swayne Johnson's service includes a review of existing arrangements, assessment of Inheritance Tax impact and proposals for tax mitigation. Home visits can be arranged as can emergency Wills.

The temptation to write a homemade Will may be great, but the problems which can arise from doing so without proper advice can also be great. By using professionally qualified specialists, you will ensure that your wishes are validly recorded, and you can be confident in having your affairs in order.
